The following Lincoln, Neb., special to the Chicago Tribune, says in regard to the progress of the Missour Pacific in Nebraska:

A rumor is current in this city that the Missouri Pacific company has con-cluded not to build a branch of its Omaha extension to Lincoln, but avoid the city altogether. The reason for this is the Union Pacific road connectthis is the Union Pacinic road connected with this city by a branch line, and as the interests of these two roads are mutual, both having the same stockholders, a branch of the Missouri Pacific to Lincoln would come in direct competition with the branch already in operation by the Union Pacific. cific—a competition not desirable by either company. Another rumor be-ing circulated pretty thoroughly is to the effect that the Union Pacific has given up its contemplated extension from this city to Beatrice, a survey of which was made last fall. This is said to have been brought about by a threat of the Burlington and Missouri to take possession of some of the terri-tory of the Union Pacific in case that road does not relinquish its purpose of building to Beatrice. As it looks now, these two great corporations have ef-fected a compromise, and will keep out of each other's way in the future

The following letter concerning the ate mill run of the Virginia Belle has bren received by D. B. Powers:

s much as possible.

GUNNISON, COLO., Mar. 17, 1882. D. B. Powers, Salina, Kansas— DEAR SIR: On or about Feb. 6 Mr. Wm. H. Turner and I were employed by Alexander Gullett to go the Vir-ginia Belle mine, situate on Copper creek, and get some ore for a mill test. The first day we went to Crested Butte, and the second to Gothic, and on the third we went to the top of the mountains via the Virginias; but the snow on the crests of the mountains hung in masses and was piled in such heaps that we thought it too dangerous fo us to undertake to pass over the snow down to the cabin, so we returned to town. The fourth day Turner was snow-blind, and we then employed a man by the name of Lessy to assist us in getting the ore; and on the fifth we went to the mine via the Copper creek trail, reaching the cabin about 2 P. M., where we remained over night. The next day we examined the ore, and my opinion is it is a contact vein in lime and porphyry. The ore was the end of the incline, from a space about six feet wide, commencing a what appears to be the foot-wall. I could not tell from present developments the exact width of the vein, but it now shows more than seven feet. The vein matter is quartz, most of which is in a crystalized state. The which is in a crystalized state. The minerals apparent and in sight are carbonates of iron, oxide of copper and black sulphurets of silver. There seems to have been a general cruption and disturbance of the different strata of rock, and the present workings have not reached solid formation.
